Hello,

I'm composing this e-mail with the likelihood of someone actually reading it.

I am a Microsoft Certified Systems Engineer and like Microsoft software. Programming and networking are the things I enjoy.

Thought I'd make some basic points.

A monopoly that isn't regulated is not a good thing unless you have benevolent management.

Microsoft has a monopoly on the workstation and home PC market.

Microsoft has used the operating system monopoly to force other products on customers. Internet Explorer is a good example.

Microsoft continues to abuse the operating system monopoly. XP is an example.

The DOJ needs to be tougher on Microsoft, or any company that abuses monopoly.

I've put a lot of thought into how Microsoft, DOJ, customers, and rivals would be in a "win-win" situation. If someone is serious about listening to my suggestions, please contact me at 816-651-4025.

Take Care and God Bless.
